National Day for Truth and Reconciliation

Each year, September 30 marks the National Day for Truth and Reconciliation.

It honours the tragic legacy of residential schools, the missing children, the families left behind and the survivors of these institutions.

This day also coincides with Orange Shirt Day. The Orange Shirt Society was formed in 2015 to spread awareness of the individual, family and community inter-generational impacts of residential schools with the purpose of supporting reconciliation and promoting the truth that Every Child Matters.

Labour Day

Labour Day in Canada is celebrated on the first Monday of September, and it is a federal statutory holiday.

Labour Day has historically been a time to promote and celebrate workers' right. These still play a role in Labour Day for some Canadians. However, many Canadians now devote the Labour Day holiday to family time and leisure activity. Accordingly, Labour Day in Canada was originally celebrated in the spring, but it was moved to the fall after 1894.
